Documentary Video: "Surry's Hardest Day"

Plan on attending for our next scheduled meeting in Richmond to view the documentary video "Surry's Hardest Day." Produced by Dominion with the purpose of capturing institutional knowledge, this 30 minute documentary recounts the Surry Feed-water Pipe Rupture in December 1986. The first occurrence of a single-phase Flow Assisted Corrosion (FAC) failure, it remains the U.S. nuclear industry's worst accident with fatalities.

Mr. Josh Bell, Chair of the VCU Student Section of ANS, currently a VCU Nuclear Engineering Student and Dominion intern, and Robert Darrow of Virginia Tech were responsible for producing this video and the associated training materials during their summer 2011 employment.
